2. Recent developments concerning construction projects

(a) Building Code

By letters dated 30 June 2025, the Ministry of Construction under the (then) State Administration Council distributed an updated “National Building Code 2025” to the Myanmar Engineering Council, the Myanmar Architect Council, the High-rise and Public Building Projects Committee and other organisations which in turn instructed their members to comply with it.

The Building Code is available in Burmese (where it is not referred to as a “code”, but as “standard guidelines”) and in English and composed of several parts which are published in separate volumes. We collated them into one document for easier handling (Burmese/English).

The Code, whose English version comprises 1,211 pages, deals with the following matters:

- Part 1: urban planning; management related to buildings and the urban environment (among others, building permits and building completion certificates)
- Part 2: architecture and urban design
- Part 3: structural design
- Part 4: soil and foundation
- Part 5A: lighting; part 5B: installation of electrical and related equipment; part 5C: installation of lifts and escalators; part 5D: water supply, drainage and sanitation; part 5E: heating, mechanical ventilation and air-conditioning; part 5F: fire safety, fire protection systems and means of escape
- Part 6: building materials
- Part 7: construction management and planning, construction practices, workplace safety and building maintenance

The Code goes back to a 2012 draft in English whose creation was coordinated by the Ministry of Construction and which was solidified in 2016. The Code does not specify on which legal basis it was created, but the Ministry of Construction declared the 2016 version compulsory with effect from 1 October 2018. The 2016 Code was replaced by an updated, bilingual version in 2020 which in turn is now being replaced by the 2025 version.

The foreword of the 2025 Code suggests that provisions were added to ensure the construction of earthquake-resistant buildings.

It is not clear which norm will prevail if there are inconsistencies: E.g., the Code provides in para. 2.11.5.2 for a maximum height of 9 feet in case of fences which are so constructed as to permit the passage of light and air, whereas the building regulations (see below) of the Yangon City Development Committee (“YCDC”) allow for 10 feet.

In this context, the Fire Services Department published a Fire Safety Code in 2020 (Burmese/English) and the Ministry of Environmental Conservation and Forestry an Environmental Impact Assessment Procedure in 2015 (Burmese/English)

(b) YCDC's building regulations

Since at least 2015, possibly earlier, the YCDC has published a booklet summarising the building procedures and terms and conditions within the YCDC area (the “Regulations”). The latest version of this booklet was published on the YCDC’s “Yangon Building Permit System” website on 14 October 2025. We prepared an English convenience translation.

The Regulations deal with the following matters:

- Height limits within, on the boundary of, and outside the Shwedagon restricted area
- Other restricted areas (Shwe Bone Pwint Pagoda, Moe Kaung Pagoda, Shin Saw Pu Road, Khaing Shwe Wa Street in Kamaryut, Golden Valley, vicinity of Insein Prison)
- Zone to avoid impacts on aviation (the map and the sketch in the Regulations are not very clear)
- Height of walls and fences
- Power line spacing
- Parking space requirements
- Setbacks
- Building coverage ratio and floor area ratio
- Minimum floor heights
- Building height depending on road width and slenderness ratio
- Installation of lifts
- Duties and disciplines of registered engineers

Expressions used in the Regulations were defined in 2020.

(c) Building permits and building completion certificates

On 11 July 2024, the YCDC published standard operating procedures (“SOP”) for the issuance of building permits and building completion certificates (Burmese/English).

The SOP distinguish between permits for the construction of low, medium and high-risk buildings and additionally specify procedures for minor building works and temporary structures (definition) and for the issuance of a “technical administrative information sheet” (by which the YCDC informs the landowner of basic planning terms so that the landowner may create a preliminary design of the building) and demolition permits.

Whether a building is low, medium or high-risk can be determined with an online tool based on a matrix that is composed of construction risk elements, occupancy rates and use risk elements.

The Burmese version furthermore contains SOP for contractor’s licences (famously, a licenced contractor must own real estate worth at least MMK 150,000,000), soil testing business licences, piling business licences and surveyor’s licences.

It should be noted that the Ministry of Construction requires contractors to additionally register their companies with a contractor registration working committee.

A list of official fees for building permits and other administrative services as well as of penalties was published on 10 April 2025.

(d) Zoning regulations

The YCDC published drafts of zoning regulations (Burmese) and development permit rules and regulations (Burmese/English) in 2022. The drafts have not been enacted yet.

3. Geographical indications

On 21 November 2025, the Ministry of Commerce under the NDSC issued rules for the registration of geographical indications (Burmese) and the corresponding forms (bilingual). The official fees do not seem to have been published yet.

Geographical indications are names or signs identifying products from a specific place, linking their quality, reputation or characteristics to that origin, like Champagne, Scotch Whisky or Darjeeling Tea (or, in a Myanmar context, possibly Ayardaw Thanakha, Bagan Lacquerware or Ywar Ngan Coffee and other products that are associated with a particular locality). Legal entities

5. Certification of compliance with standards

On 9 October 2025, the National Standards Council under the NDSC with Notification 85/2025 (Burmese) established the following Myanmar standard (MMS) marks to certify products that comply with the relevant standard, depending on whether compliance is voluntary or mandatory:

(Voluntary Standard Mark)

Certified to: MMS XXXX: YYYY
Certification No: ZZZZ
License No: AAAA

(Mandatory Standard Mark)
